Dear Hiring Manager,

I am a recent graduate with a diverse international background, born in Brazil, raised in Italy, and educated in Canada. I hold an Italian passport and recently earned my College Diploma in Computer Programming from Sheridan College in Ontario, Canada. I am thrilled to apply for a position within your company, where I am confident my motivation and technical skills can add immediate value to your projects and, most importantly, the clients you serve. I am equally eager for the learning opportunities that working with an industry leader would provide.

My academic and project experiences have equipped me to deliver exceptional client-centric design, focusing on end-user experiences to create responsive, user-focused digital products. I am adept at building and expanding User Stories, utilizing a range of programming skills across HTML, CSS, and Java to meet project objectives effectively. Guided by an end-user-centered approach, I am committed to delivering superior digital touchpoints and enhanced web solutions.

In addition to my Diploma, I have pursued online courses in Cyber Security, where I completed final tests and practical exams. My recent focus has been on developing a heightened User Experience as a Web Developer, and I am excited to bring this expertise to your team. I embrace an approach to work that emphasizes integrity, accountability, teamwork, and a profound respect for individual diversity—values that I believe resonate with your company's principles.

I am open to relocation within Europe, Canada, or the USA. I am available to discuss my qualifications further by email or phone, as listed above. Additionally, you may view my portfolio at GitHub.

Thank you for considering my application.

With best regards,

Lucas Ghigli
